What Is Biontology?

Biontology is a combination of the words bio and ontology. Bio is well known and relates to everything which has to do with life. Ontology is the study of the ultimate reality of nature.

My therapy with the body's own light, with the biophotons, was one step towards biontology. I realized that I was doing far more in therapy than just working with biophotons. The biophotons were a means of communicating between the subconscious of the body with me. It showed me a lot, the memory of the cells.

The biophotons are one step in the direction of finding the truth behind all physical manifestations and illusions, the truth behind nature.

Science is in itself very unscientific, because the validity is questionable. In science everything has to be repeated in order to qualify for the term scientific. Yet in reality billions of things change every fraction of a second so nothing can ever be the same.

So science appears far removed from reality. Unless the objects are dead. Only in that case everything can be the same. We can say that science only applies to dead objects and not to life.

The Cube of Reality

We observe reality as being three dimensional – length, width and depth. But let us take a big cube. A cube has 6 sides. Let us give the six sides all different colours.

The bottom is black, the top white and the other sides green, yellow, red and blue.

If you stand in front of say the blue side, you will call the cube blue. Another person stands at the other side and calls the cube yellow. Both persons tell their own truth which is only part of the whole truth. Both people present their truth as the whole truth and that is very misleading. This is what science does.

If those two persons move themselves towards a corner then they suddenly observe two sides each. Depending on the direction in which they have moved they will observe two totally different sides or they may see one common side. If they keep moving they will see more and more of the truth.

By keeping moving, by remaining flexible you will widen your consciousness. The moment you stand still you get fixed and growth stops.

It is similar when you look at a picture. The closer you get, the less you see. That is one of the problems with specialism. It is as if the specialists are sucked into the theme and cannot let go. The specialist will have lost sight of the overall picture.

But the four sides of the cube of which we now have established that they are physical realities rest on something. The bottom, black, side. That side is invisible for us, yet it is the foundation of everything that exists. It is invisible for the 5 senses. It is not invisible for the sixth sense.

The four sides of the cube are physical in the sense that they exist in the three dimensions. The bottom side does not lie in the three dimensional universe, but in other dimensions. In other words the whole physical, three dimensional universe is based on other dimensions, that most people cannot see, hear or smell.

For a number of people the things that they cannot see, hear or smell do not exist.

Yet they accept that they have ideas, feelings, emotions and thoughts. These "things" also exist, but apparently not in the three dimensions.

So we may conclude that the foundation of the physical lies in the invisible dark side of the bottom of the cube.

If there is anything wrong in the physical world you have to look at the bottom and that is not easy. You don't only have to widen your consciousness, but you have to deepen it.

It is necessary to communicate with the subconscious of the body. Because that is where the causes may lie.

This subconscious of the body is not your subconscious because you are not your body. The causes may also lie within your subconscious that is constant communication with the subconscious of the body.

The art is to make you aware of the subconscious(your and the body's) and what they have to say.

Many therapists mistakenly believe that the cause of many illnesses always lies in the psyche of the person. The reason for the illnesses may lie there but it is also possible that it lies within the physical subconscious.

If you have 100 people with the same symptoms we find 100 different causes. That is why it said that symptoms do not have a cause, but have a meaning.

Every cause is a symptom in itself. Behind it lies always a deeper cause. The symptoms are generally a sign in which direction you have to search, but it is crazy to restrict your view to the location. It is the meaning that you should look at.

Every event in your life has a meaning, because you do create your life yourself. Every little bit is created by You. If you are afraid of burglars, your house will get burgled. Whose fault is it then? The burglars or yours? Because it was You who invited the burglar! The universal law of attraction always works.

If you get cancer it was because you are afraid of getting cancer. Most lung specialists die of lung cancer, Why? Because they promote the fear, promote the thing others have told them. If you ask them, none of them has personal experience with it. So fears are created by what we think, not by what we know. Fears are created by our brain. They have no reality until we create them.

Dia-Gnosis

When we “do” a diagnosis we think it is a permanent matter. But a diagnosis is only a situation at that moment. It is a dia-gnosis, a knowing of the moment. There is nothing permanent in a living system. But we treat it as if it is dead. Usual medical treatment consists of – dead-drugs, deadly chemotherapy, radiation. So if it is not dead we make it dead.

Chemotherapy is based on mustard gas. The World War II scientists invented chemotherapy, as they invented Electro-acupuncture according to Voll.

There is a big scare about the bird flue. There is information that the people who died, did not die from the bird flue but from the medication.

All you read, including this article, you must disbelieve. It is only knowledge which does not serve you at all. The only thing that will serve you is gnosis, the inner Knowing. That comes when you bring knowledge into experience. Knowledge in itself is worth something. But whether it applies to you and/or your world, you will never know. Unless you experience it. Or unless you have experienced it in this life or a previous one. But even then you have to ask yourself if the conditions are similar so that it could happen again. Knowledge comes from others, gnosis come from within.

Gnosis is the only truth and it may only last a fraction of a second. After that the truth could be different again.

You should therefore investigate the bottom side of the cube, only then you have a chance of finding out on what basis your reality is built.

Illusions and Reality

There is a good chance that your reality is based on illusions. Especially in the USA the “show must go on”. In Europe the show must go on too. But less and less people believe the show, as the rot is coming out.

You really have to question the reality of it all. If, like government publications tell us, more than 70% of the medical diagnosis are wrong, you have to question what medical doctors are for? They have for ever presented themselves as Gods, but they seem more like devils as Paracelsus already said. They and many others like them support the fear which is the cause of many illnesses.

Not because they have experienced it themselves, but because others told them.

If you have investigated the sides of the cube and have investigated the bottom, you will know where it will all lead to. To the top. To the white side.

Only if you make this effort to lift yourself, will you see the top of the cube, You will realize that no matter which path you follow, you can always reach the top.

There is only one condition and that is that you follow your own path.

No matter what reality you are in, the moment you will see what this reality is based on, you will see the light.

Before you are able to investigate the bottom, black side you have to step out of the darkness. This means that you will have to deprogram.

Most of the people are programmed to think what they think. You have learned what to think and not how to think. You have gone to school and to college or university, where you acquired presumed knowledge. Did you ever check whether this information was based on reality? If this “knowledge” corresponded with your own perception of real life?

The mind is in the heart, not in the brain. Your heart will never betray you, your head always.

That is biontology. To question absolutely everything and to investigate every possibility. Do not ever believe something that is said to you unless you feel it is true.

To see if it is in accordance with your own feelings (not emotions like fear, anger etc), to see if it is in accordance with your own experiences, because that is the only reality.

But how to deprogram?

In the first place you have to get rid of your vaccinations. The polio vaccine lames your immune system, the anti-tetanus vaccine blocks the head-heart connection.

The pituitary gland is the centre for discrimination. It has to discriminate between what is good for you and what is not. If the function is disturbed (by the vaccines) your immune system does not function anymore. If in addition your parathyroid gland is disturbed by the anti-tetanus vaccine, then your calcium metabolism does not function anymore and the heart-head connection is blocked.

These blockages stop you from deprogramming. Because in order to deprogram it is necessary to have the connections open.

Once your hormonal system is fully functioning again, your body really starts to cooperate with you. When all communication lines are open nothing is impossible anymore.

We have been denaturalized. Certain groups of people want us to forget about our human nature. Certain cold blooded types of people want us to forget that the humans amongst us have incredible potential, godlike potential, which is far superior to their potential.

Further they are working towards dehumanizing us, so that we become like them.

Not free people, but slaves of our consciousness and slaves for them.

This programming cannot be reprogramming. That would be the same thing as a revolution. A revolution only replaces one system with another system. It should be like a rebellion, whereby you shed all the dirt from your system and do not replace it with new dirt, but let it free. You become a lot lighter.

In order to really deprogram you must apply biontology. You achieve biontology by continuously asking the question "why?". If you have several problems, find the common factor between your problems. Once you have found this common factor, ask your self again: Why?

Only by asking yourself this question over and over again, can you start to discover your own invisible truth.

Those amongst us which are not like reptiles will discover that they and their bodies have unlimited possibilities and that no disease is incurable. There are no incurable diseases only incurable people. You are responsible for your life and nobody else has even the remotest chance of taking responsibility for something that does affect you.

Stop laying responsibility in somebody else's hands. Take it back. 🌸

About the Author

Johan Boswinkel, is a very independent consultant who has only unorthodox solutions for everyday problems that fail to respond to normal methods. His enormous successes in the healing of living beings (humans, plants, animals) are the result of a different way of looking at them and trying to understand how everything is really made up and how everything really functions. Symptoms are signs that point out the direction in which to go and not as something to treat.

Johan Boswinkel is educated in a variety of fields. In 1981 he stepped into the biophoton world. Johan has since then only worked towards finding the applications of this new knowledge. He has developed various instruments of which the StarLight is the latest. He came to the conclusion that the understanding of the living systems is far more important than any technology and can only be obtained by observing reality.

Tourette's Syndrome

Tourette's syndrome is thought to be a manifestation of insufficient acetylcholine in the nervous system – both peripheral and central. Nicotine modulates the activity of both dopamine (pleasure) and glutamate (activation or excitation) in the central nervous system.¹ Abnormalities in sensory gating and visual following are corrected by nicotine. These abnormalities reflect genetic variants, and can be at least partially corrected by treatment with nicotine agonists. Nicotine itself, delivered by gum or by nicotine patch, has been shown to reduce symptoms of Tourette's temporarily.^{2,3} Maternal smoking has been identified as one of the risk factors for development of Tourette's syndrome.⁴ It is possible that, since the unborn child develops in an atmosphere of increased acetylcholine, it may have developed an increased requirement for that neurotransmitter which, in the face of genetic polymorphism, may not be available in sufficient quantity under ordinary circumstances as the child grows up. Acetylcholine is required for transmission of information between nerves and muscles, and lack of acetylcholine could certainly lead to jerky and incomplete transmission of instruction. Natural sources of acetylcholine (the molecule which normally fits into the "nicotine" receptor) include phosphatidylcholine, soy lecithin (which is about 40% phosphatidylcholine) and Vitamin B3 in the form of "no-flush" niacin, or niacin hexanicotinate. 🌸
